MIT LinkedIn Learning First Login

Overview

Lynda.com has been rebranded and integrated into LinkedIn's existing suite of services as LinkedIn Learning. MIT will be moving from the Lynda.com interface and branding to LinkedIn Learning's new site in the summer of 2019.

The first time you login to MIT's LinkedIn Learning, you will need to activate your LinkedIn Learning account and have your training records from Lynda.com migrated to your MIT LinkedIn Learning account. You can also connect a personal LinkedIn account to your MIT LinkedIn Learning account.

- Lynda.com to LinkedIn Learning Transition FAQ

First Login

1. Navigate to the new MIT LinkedIn Learning site. Link to be added once live.
2. Authenticate with your MIT Touchstone credentials.
   - Result: You're prompted to activate your MIT LinkedIn Learning account.

3. Click Activate LinkedIn Learning now
   - Result: You will be prompted to connect or create a personal LinkedIn account to your MIT LinkedIn Learning account. Connecting will allow MIT to see publicly visible profile information, like your photo. You get to take advantage of enhanced learning recommendations and unified profiles. Connecting is _not_ required to access MIT's LinkedIn Learning courses.

- Privacy Information for LinkedIn Learning Learners.
4. Click Connect my LinkedIn account or Continue Without connecting my LinkedIn account.

Result:
- Don't Connect: You will be prompted again to connect. Continue selecting “Don't Connect” and it will let you move to the privacy policy in step 5.
- Connect: You will be prompted to login to your LinkedIn account as shown below or click “Join now” to create an account.

5. Sign in or click through the messages encouraging you to connect.

Result: You are presented with the privacy policy.
6. Click Accept and Continue to agree to the privacy policy.

Result: Your Lynda.com account information will be migrated to LinkedIn Learning and your MIT LinkedIn Learning account will be activated. You’ll be able to start taking courses right away.