Outlook 2016/2013/2010

Note: These steps assume you are connected to your Microsoft 365 account via Exchange. By default, this feature is turned off, so you must turn it on to view quota information. Here's how:

1. Start Outlook.
2. Right-click anywhere on the bottom Outlook bar.
3. Click on the first option Quota Information and you will see that it switches to the "On" mode.
4. You can now see the amount of free space left and the number of items you have in each folder, in the bottom left-hand corner of the Outlook bar.

Outlook 2016/2011

Note: These steps assume you are connected to your Microsoft 365 account via Exchange.

1. Start Outlook.
2. Right-click on your account name within your mail folder listing and select Folder > Properties from the sub-menu.
3. From within "Folder Properties" screen, click on Storage.
4. Depending on the number of objects (mail folders, calendar items, contacts, and tasks) you have in your account, it can take minutes for your quota usage information to be retrieved.
