Github Accounts After Graduation or Leaving MIT

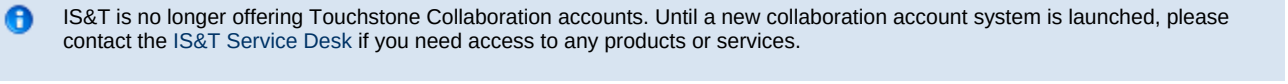

Github Accounts After Graduation or Leaving MIT

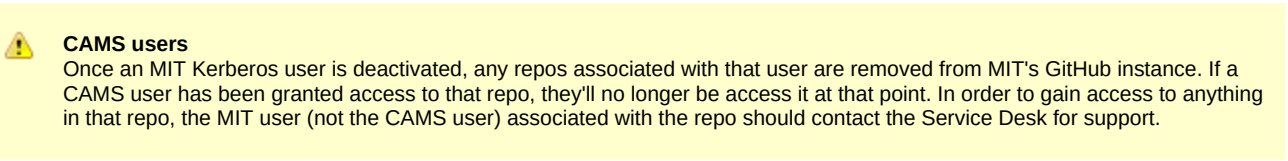

What happens to a GitHub account and associated repositories when an individual leaves MIT?

Access to the GitHub account remains in place as long as your MIT email address and associated Kerberos account is active. Student accounts are typically deactivated in the January following your graduation date, and staff accounts are typically deactivated at the end of employment.

Github organizations will remain as long as a current MIT user is one of the owners. You can transfer the repository to someone else with an MIT email address.

Here are the transfer instructions to transfer a repository between organizations:
https://docs.github.com/en/enterprise/2.19/user/github/administering-a-repository/transferring-a-repository

See Also

- GitHub Landing Page