

Can I get a Pharos printer for my lab, department, or student group?

Q: Can I get a Pharos printer for my lab, department, or student group?

Answer

We use a variety of different metrics when determining where to deploy additional Pharos printers. One of the most important considerations, however, is that the space where the printer is located is open and accessible to all members of the MIT Community. While we would love to give each student group its own printer, we simply don't have the resources to do that. However, we are always willing to discuss exceptions and corner cases. (For example, if the space is accessible to all MIT students 24x7, or accessible to all community members 24x5.) If you believe you have identified a location for a Pharos printer that would benefit a substantial portion of the MIT community, please contact us at student-printing-feedback@mit.edu and let us know.

See Also

- Can I integrate an existing printer into the Pharos system?
- Pharos Printing Landing Page